The Era of Good King "Tut"

When excavators unearthed the ancient resting place of Tut-ankh-amen, they found relics of untold valuebeaten gold, works of art-precious stones in lavish profusion. These glowing treasures from the Valley of the Kings point straight back 3000 years to a golden age of luxury.

Yet all the wealth of good King "Tut" could not have bought him a toothbrush, rented a telephone for a day, or purchased a safety razor.

After all, this is really the golden age. We have more to be happy with-keener comforts for our choosing. An infinite variety of things have been developed to sooth the course of life to a degree unknown and unbelievable centuries ago.

Nowadays, new comforts and conveniences slip into our lives almost without our realizing it. We are apt to be rather matter of fact about it all.

And advertising is the instrument that makes most of these things possible. Advertising that has made it simple to make and distribute innumerable products at reasonable prices, has played a leading part in making our lives so eminently easy to live.

Read over the advertisements and try to think what the things you see there would have meant to old King "Tut." Then you will realize what a service and what a convenience advertising is to you.

You are not getting the most out of life if you overlook the advertising.

As Being Thyself

By EDWARD LEVINE

(@, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.) EVERYBODY had met the old man, Sam Field, in the woods, or moving in a dream along the unfrequented streets. "Mad Sam," he was called. His sister, who was a milliner, supported him. He was never violent, but he hardly ever seemed to know where he was. When you passed him you heard him muttering disjointedly. Sometimes he would do odd jobs, but he nearly always lost himself in the middle of them and left the job unfinished. Sarah took the money; it was no use giving Sam money. Either he lost it or he gave it away to the first person who looked poor.

"You see, he's me," he explained. He seemed to have an idea that he lived in every one he knew. It was an odd craze. But his sister was devoted to him.

I hadn't lived long in Springfield before I learned Sam's history. In his early days he had been a prosperous merchant. He was engaged to be married, but his bride to be ran away the night before the ceremony. That gave him an attack of some obscure mental malady. He never recovered the use of his wits.

Sam seemed to take a liking to me. "You see, I'm not really mad," he said. "Only, when she ran away from me, it sort of opened a door. I wanted to kill them at first. Then I understood it wasn't any use, because we were all the same. Yes, sir, he was me. She was me, too.

"I knew then what she was thinking of, and how she felt. She had been secretly in love with him for a long time. When the date of the wedding drew near she became desperate. She met him that evening and they agreed to run away together. If I had killed them I'd have killed myself.

"Yes, sir, each of us is everybody else. It's not knowing that that shuts us up in our little islands of self. I'm you, sir, with your nice house and your wife. I often sit in your chair at nights. When you play with your rell, catcher of the Chicago Cubs, his nearest rival. Smith's mark is children you're playing with me."

Well, there was a sort of philosophy in Sam's point of view, but of course the village wouldn't have seen anything but madness in it.

POISONING BOLL WEEVIL By W. E. Jackson Acting Entomologist, Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station The following is taken from recommendations adopted by the Southern Agricultural Workers at the recent annual meeting at Memphis: "Of the various methods of control involving the use of poison your committee recommends the calcium arsenate dusting method and the Florida method. There are no other methods having as yet the sanction of adequate scientific proof. The limitations of the calcium arsenate dusting method lie in the fact that it has been found protitable only on lands capable of producing one-third to one-half baie per acre or more, that it requires a maximum of calcium arsenate and that it must be applied at night and by the use of machinery. Aside from these limitatons, its worth, through several years and under varying conditions, has been fully and conclusively demonstrated, not only by the experiment stations but by practical farmers throughout the cotton belt."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD'S DAILY BENEFITS:-Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation .-Psalm 68:19.

PAYING THE PRICE.

Radicals of many stripes prate about a greater liberty in this nation. Perhaps getting ahead hasn't been as easy during the past few years as it was in our grandfather's day, but certainly opportunities are greater if we would but grasp them.

Take the case of A. C. Bray. He is the new superintendent of schools at Sulphur. This spring he and his wife and their two children all graduated at the state university at the same time.

We point to this as an apt illustration of what a man can accomplish here if he is willing to work.

The United States is abounding in opportunities, jobs, positions of responsibility and high honors for men who are worthy and well qualified. Socialism, communism nor any kind of ism is going to be able to overturn the law of compensation and provide easy times for men who are not willing to pay a price.—Ardmoreite.

Owning a home is a wonderful incentive to put forth one's best efforts. One trouble is that many people are not willing to deny themselves of things they might do without while paying out their home, not being able to wait for other things until comfortably established for life. On the other hand we have in mind a young couple who came to Ada some years ago with a capital of $200. The young man had a steady job and being a good worker still holds that one or a better one with the same concern. With his $200 he made a payment on a home which he purchased at rock bottom figures and paid the balance out at the rate of $8 per month and interest. He says it often took his last dollar to meet the payments but he never missed one. In course of time he paid his place out. It is now worth twice as much as he gave for it and he is not worrying about high rents. Hundreds of others could do as this family did but it might mean close economy while the home was being paid out. The more home owners a community has the better off it is.

Women have had the ballot only a few years but have been making rapid progress in the way of getting office. No governor has yet been elected, but it is highly probable that some women will achieve this honor within a very few years. Judging from the record of women rulers in the past it is not improbable that some women would give their states very creditable administrations. England made more progress during the reigns of Elizabeth and Victoria than at any other time in her history. Russia became a power to be reckoned with during the reign of Catherine II, Austria-Hungary boasts of Maria Theresa, the Scandinavian countries made great progress under Margaret of Denmark, and in even ancient days there were some striking examples like Zenobia of Palmyra and Cleopatra of Egypt, although these two fell before the power of Rome.

Word comes from Oklahoma City that Robert L. Knie, conventions or an unusual and often material first hand for a story. She lems that relate to social and inthoughtless remark. This accusation has not been denied, but Knie has been the target of attack for a whole string of politicians because of his assertions. If Knie has told the truthand he is in a position to know the facts—he should be commended for faithful service and steps he taken to collect this money which belongs to the school children of Oklahoma. The schools need the money and the purchasers and lessees should be made to pay up. Tulsa papers state that the school board of that city has agreed to pay Dr. P. P. Claxton, the newly elected superintendent a salary of $13,800 per year. That is the best salary for a school man in Oklahoma but the board figured that Tulsa is a big town and needed a big man to head the school made the people of the cities realsystem. Twenty years ago a salary of that kind for a school man was undreamed of, the people being content to drift along with half-supported schools and losing heavily through inefficient management.
